

THE AMERICAN UNIVERSITY IN CAIRO
School of Business, Economics and Communication
Department of Management

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

15 December 2005

Mohamed Nasim Al-Dahoud has been one of my students in the Master of Business Administration (MBA) Graduate Degree Program in management information systems courses. His performance ranks him among the most dedicated students in my classes and positioned him among the top 5% of my students across various management information systems graduate courses. As a student, he has been devoted, innovative, and committed to learning. He possesses creating thinking capabilities. He also has proven to be energetic and pleasant to work with.

In that respect, I strongly recommend Mohamed due to his different capacities both professional and academic in terms of research skills. He has professional ambitions that I am confident that will help him to compete in different environments. I am also confident that the knowledge he is going to acquire will further enhance his capacities and will be positively reflected in his professional career and where he has the willingness and potentials to assume responsibilities and deliver quality outcome and continuously strive to reach higher grounds and improve his performance and that of the position he holds.

Sherif Kamel
Associate Professor of MIS
Department of Management
School of Business, Economics and Communication
The American University in Cairo